COMMUNITY spirit is once again shining at Woolgoolga Regional Community Gardens (WRCG), with a series of new donations helping boost the development.

Woolgoolga Lions Club recently donated three new wheelbarrows to the gardens, while Mitre 10 Woolgoolga has donated secateurs and work gloves.

Sandy Beach resident Jase has donated a number of fruit trees he propagated. "The garden now has lemon, orange, mandarin, white Thai guava and black sapote (chocolate pudding fruit) trees," WRCG president EJ Merrick said. "Another resident has also donated seed for pumpkin and squash."

The gardens are open from 8am-noon every Saturday with the whole community encouraged to get involved.

The gardens committee is currently planning the Spring Community Festival Day to be held at the gardens on August 28.
